

Notes on my presentation February 9, 2023

Fact of Fiction

Using the Internet to Validate Facts

Dan Madsen

Thanks to those who attended my session and for the positive comments from a number of you. Despite the technical glitches, I hope you gained some insights. If the process was a little uncomfortable, I think it was unavoidably so.

The company I work for online is Ad Fontes Media. adfontesmedia.com
There's a lot you can learn from the site and if you look around enough you can find my picture and a short bio. ☺

Here is the Wikipedia article on the company.

I demonstrated the use of the site 12ft ladder. The site allows you to open fully some web pages that are locked.

Here is a helpful short piece from the Benedictine University Library
Fake News: Develop Your Fact-Checking Skills: Fact Checking

Here is ISTE's evaluation of top fact checking sites.
Top 10 Sites To Help Students Check Their Facts

From College of Staten Island
Websites for Fact-Checking